Summary of Results from Implementing Direct Measures of Student Learning:
1. It was expected that our graduating students would not meet the minimum criteria for the portfolio assessment, due to a lack of time to appropriately develop the portfolio tool since being granted candidacy status. We had a total of 22 graduates across all Business disciplines in the Spring 2015 semester. Of those 22, 12 students submitted portfolios. After the portfolios were evaluated, all but 2 of the students received a satisfactory rating from the faculty committee. Therefore, we did not meet our performance target of 80%, because only 55% of graduating seniors submitted portfolios at all. We have instituted a department-wide policy, effective Fall 2015 for all Business students that requires the creation of student portfolios in the initial business course, and a portfolio assignment in each course. This way, by the time students achieve graduation the portfolio will be complete and current.
2. Students were evaluated using the simulation tools, as well as classroom participation, and a grading rubric (shown in Appendix A of the Outcomes Assessment Plan). The results of the simulation assessment are shown in the chart below. We did not meet our stated objective for this student learning outcome during our self-study period. Our objective was that 80% of students would achieve a satisfactory or higher rating, but only 75% of the students achieved a satisfactory rating or higher. This was the first time we have utilized the simulation tool, and anticipate that over time the ratings will improve.

Summary of Results from Implementing Indirect Measures of Student Learning:

1. Of the 24 students who participated in internships during the self-study period, 15 students completed the internship self-evaluation questionnaire, or 63%. As this was the first time we requested this feedback from students, we felt this was a good response, though we would like to see more participation. A break-down of the general program ISLO's that were evaluated, as well as percentages of students that rated their performance as satisfactory or higher can be reviewed in the table below. All General Programs ISLO's measured met or exceeded our goals of 80% of students rating their internship performance as satisfactory or higher on each criterion related to the general program ISLO's measured by this assessment.

Additionally, each student was asked to self-evaluate their internship performance in relation to each of the program-specific criteria related to the ISLO's measured by this assessment. The ISLO's and the results of the internship self-assessment are listed in the table below. Upon completing this evaluation, it is apparent that multiple students did not follow the directions on the survey, which asked them to respond to the questions only concerning their major, which skewed the numbers. Therefore, we will be re-creating this survey to ensure that only questions related to each student's major are included going forward.

Proposed Courses of Action for Improvement in Learning Outcomes for which Performance Targets Were Not Met:

1. Direct Measure 1: Portfolio Assessment

Due to a lack of time to properly implement and monitor the student portfolios since we did not receive approval for our Outcomes Assessment Plan until April, and our term ends in May, we did not obtain the proper level of response we need to achieve our target outcomes. Therefore, we have instituted a department-wide policy, effective Fall 2015, for all Business students that requires the creation of student portfolios in the initial business course, and a portfolio assignment in each course. This way, by the time students achieve graduation the portfolio will be complete and current.

2. Direct Measure 2: Capstone Business Strategy Simulation in BUS 4473

Our target outcome was 80% of students would receive a satisfactory or higher rating in the simulation, but only 75% of students achieved this rating. Since this is the first time we utilized the simulation, we anticipate that scores will improve for the next term, and so no action will be taken at this time until we can determine if the numbers are an adjustment period or if they actually reflect the ability of our students to be successful. It was also noted that Sports Management Majors did not perform as well in the simulation as did other majors. We suspect this is because they do not take as many business courses as other students under the current plan, but need to collect more data to see if this holds true in subsequent semesters.

3. Indirect Measure 1: Internship Questionnaire

All General Programs ISLO's measured met or exceeded our goals of 80% of students rating their internship performance as satisfactory or higher on each criterion related to the general program ISLO's measured by this assessment. Therefore, no action is necessary at this time.

The survey instrument was flawed in that students were asked to only respond to questions pertaining to the ISLO's for their specific major. Due to the number of responses received, it was apparent that many of the students responded to the ISLO questions for all of the majors, not just their own. Therefore, we have developed new surveys that are sent to each student that includes the general program ISLO's for all students, but only the ISLO's for that student's particular major.

4. Indirect Measure 2: Senior Exit Survey

All General Programs ISLO's measured met or exceeded our goals of 80% of students rating their internship performance as satisfactory or higher on each criterion related to the general program ISLO's measured by this assessment. Therefore, no action is necessary at this time.

The survey instrument was flawed in the same manner that the Internship Questionnaire was in that students were asked to only respond to questions pertaining to the ISLO's for their specific major. Due to the number of responses received, it was apparent that many of the students responded to the ISLO questions for all of the majors, not just their own. Therefore, we have developed new surveys that are sent to each student that includes the general program ISLO's for all students, but only the ISLO's for that student's particular major.
